5.1 Complaints

- 5.1.1 Complaints regarding any aspect of the elections process may be submitted by any candidate, student, or member of the University.
- 5.1.2 Complaints must be submitted by completing an official elections complaint form, submitted either by email to the Returning Officer or on paper to the GSA office. A valid University of York email address must be supplied with the complaint for it to be considered.
- 5.1.3 All valid complaints will be referred to the Elections Committee for consideration. The Returning Officer determines what constitutes a valid complaint.
- 5.1.4 Complaints must be in regard to a specific breach of Election Regulations or University policy.
- 5.1.5 The Elections Committee will decide on the appropriate course of action regarding any complaints. This includes issuing sanctions to any found to be in breach of the Election Regulations or, in extreme cases, the disqualification of a candidate.
- 5.1.6 The Elections Committee may also take action if they become aware of a breach of Election Regulations through other means.
- 5.1.7 Once a public written warning has been issued for an offence, any breach of the same type by any candidate will be considered more serious.
- 5.1.8 Candidates may appeal to the Elections Committee regarding their decisions, but only in cases where new evidence has arisen. If they remain dissatisfied with the outcome of the appeal then they may make a written appeal to the GSA Board of Trustees to annul the election.
- 5.1.9 Once voting has ended, the only complaints that may be submitted are in relation to the conduct of the count.

5.2 Sanctions

- 5.2.1 The Elections Committee has the power to issue what sanctions they feel are appropriate. These may include, but are not limited to:
 - A formal verbal warning. Notice that the warning was given may be publicly declared.
 - A formal written warning. This will be distributed to all candidates, and may be publicly displayed.
 - A temporary or permanent campaign ban. The candidate and their campaign team are banned from any form of campaigning for a certain length of time. This may include the removal of the candidate's publicity from around campus and from the website.
 - Disqualification from elections. This will only be issued for serious or repeated breaches of the regulations.
 - Any other sanctions may be issued as the Elections Committee see fit.
- 5.2.2 Where candidates running as part of an election slate are found to be in breach of the Election Regulations, any sanctions applied may be extended to the rest of the slate depending on the circumstances and nature of the offence.

In cases of serious election offences which also constitute a breach of University regulations, the Elections Committee may advise students to submit a complaint through the official University complaints procedure.

6. Process for Vacancies and By-Elections

6.1 Principal Officer Vacancies

- 6.1.1 According to the constitution, in case of an Officer position becoming vacant a by-election should be held. By-elections may be held in conjunction with an already scheduled election.
- 6.1.2 For the time between the office becoming vacant and the position being re-elected, Association Council may, by majority vote, co-opt one or more officers to cover the responsibilities of the position.
- 6.1.3 Co-opted officers must be able to cover all responsibilities of the post until it is re-elected.
- 6.1.4 The vacancy may be covered between the remaining Principal Officers. In this case, one Principal Officer will be directed to receive correspondence, including email, directed to the vacant position. Other responsibilities will be redistributed between the remaining Principal Officers as convenient.
- 6.1.5 In the case that the Principal Officers are unable or unwilling to cover the position, one or more members of Association Council may be co-opted to cover all responsibilities of the role.
- 6.1.6 Officers covering a vacant post must receive payment entitled by the post, proportional to the work undertaken.
- 6.1.7 The maximum length of time an officer may be co-opted without an election taking place is 4 months.

7. Guidelines

Guidelines are for items not covered by the official regulations, i.e. publicity provision, online publicity rules, election slates, etc. They shall be proposed and enforced at the discretion of the Elections Committee. Once decisions are issued by the Committee for a particular election they are considered to be part of the official Election Regulations for the period of that election. The following are suggestions only.

7.1 Physical Publicity

- 7.1.1 All candidate publicity must be approved by the GSA.
- 7.1.2 Each candidate may have a maximum of 20 A3, 40 A4, and 40 A5 posters during the campaign period. Candidates may request any quantity up to the maximum.
- 7.1.3 All candidate publicity should include direction to the location of information on the Election Regulations and complaints process.
- 7.1.4 Candidates are responsible for removing their publicity following the close of voting.

7.2 Online Publicity

- 7.2.1 Candidates may make use of social networking sites as a platform for their campaign, provided that all pages or groups created have open access to all students. On creation of a page or group a link must be sent to the Returning Officer, who may request administrator access and publish it on the GSA website.
- 7.2.2 Only English language websites may be used for campaigning.
- 7.2.3 Candidates may not issue multiple invitations to an individual to join an online group, as this may count as harassment.
- 7.2.4 Official GSA social media pages and groups are to be considered campaign free zones. The GSA will post official messages in these groups directing people to manifesto's and individual groups.

7.3 Campaigning

- 7.3.1 Candidate teams or 'election slates', composed of groups of candidates standing for different positions helping to support each other's campaigns, will be allowed at the discretion of the Elections Committee. However, candidates are voted in separately, and this must be made clear on all campaign materials.
- 7.3.2 Regarding publicity for election slates, either each candidate will have an individual poster displaying only their details, or they may have a joint poster and receive the same publicity allowance as a single candidate.

7.4 Use of Email

- 7.4.1 Candidates may not send emails relating to their campaigns, except to registered members of their campaign team or other members of their election slate.

7.5 Question Time

Guidelines will depend on the method. Candidates may submit video, participate in a video stream, or accept questions from a forum or chat. Participation may be obligatory or not.
